

Peace Team. Here is what I learned from the 6-5-25 session.

I start the charts with the “Pre Market Gameplan” ideas :o)

I admit that I’m still getting the “trying a few small trades for fun” thang out of the system, and I was honest with that on the charts. The important thing that I am working on, is devoting to the idea of waiting for displacement away from a key level. If there is no displacement, then no trading, because displacement shows “Intention” for price to move. We are aware that a candle displacement might be manipulation, that’s why we work with key levels (where Market Makers like to “do business”). Trade entry confirmations will include FVG’s that are respected, and also FVG/IFVG combinations. Market Makers are manipulating, so the “Time Based Liquidity” strategy considers that reality, while patiently waiting for confirmations to honor the “Peace of mind” process.

Learning to commit to a repeatable and “proven” strategy means following the rules.

Something to remember, is that we all have “Gaps of understanding” when learning trading, and no matter where we are in the journey, there is always hope, so we might as well start devoting to the process? Or maybe, for some people, its just fun to listen to trading sessions? Regardless...We return to Love...Peace...The goal is to make money and share the approach with others...We agree though, that “having fun learning” is a healthy mindset when trying to make progress. “Continuous improvement” also helps us deal with losing trades...It’s a “Constructive way” to process through stuff. Onwards and upwards...

Team Trading Reeesspect!

Cool...Be safe. Take care. Peace.
