Side note that went with the mp3:

Peace...thanks to the folks who "assembled"/communicated Faith 4 the Faithless...I am a spokesperson too...and as we've said, for us rap is functional when we need to get things off the chest, to remember in faction rationalizations (and for the mind), though we're just trying ta chill...well, "who isn't kid" :) So, the enemy is the destroy mentality...take comfort in being "aware"...love and life motivations...to the "I see you"...well, "we all see eachother here don't we?" :-) in a neighborhood that's different, we're dealing with "the Great Transparency" neighborhood, and there's lots of Running Games apparently...respect the Elders who care...quite a time period...gotta work together folks...the media argument of the blue/red wars has gotta get more mature (teach love) about things...please...thanks...blue doesn't just mean "discipline/know the clock" only and red doesn't just mean just love...there's all kinds of examples from both "sides" historically, and we're supposed to be focused on unity anyway! We did all this work for peace, for all these years, and the "no end in sight" stuff is unknowingly pushing division?...let's get organized folks...peace to "self styled" wisdom...always a chance to change the inertia...the kids in the future are gonna ask, "Did they get along?"..."Yup, they sure did loved one they'll say"...our team did...yup, and the tunes and communications and videos etc. will prove that...so we got THAT part of it, but what was the other part? Please don't put the division part on us...the story was a cultural compliment and inspiration, not a division quest...be encouraged...cool...I/We...peace...
